

What Our Clients Say about Richard Formby

During the last 2 years, I have worked closely with Richard Formby in analysing substantial claims for Special Damages including claims for loss of pensions and future financial losses. The work has been carried out on behalf of both Claimants and Defendants and I have always found Richard's enthusiasm, forensic abilities and willingness to give 100% to be both in the interests of my clients and it has enabled me to share the burden of large value claims. I was so impressed with Richard's expertise that in a recent assessment of damages claim valued by the other side as over £800,000, I recommended Monahans to my clients who quickly established a rapport with Richard and the case was settled for a fraction of the initial amount. This was in no small part to the input of Richard. I am always happy to recommend Monahans and specifically Richard Formby to clients, Barristers and colleagues, wherever there is a matter where his expertise can be utilised.

During the past couple of years we have had reason to call upon Richard's assistance to deal with complex financial and business issues in Court proceedings and he has always impressed with his professional approach to both procedural and substantive matters. He takes care to ensure that the ambit of instructions is clearly defined, that the client knows exactly how much he will have to pay, that time limits can be adhered to and that his reports address the issues and provide clear conclusions. His reports are well structured and easy to comprehend and above all he is very approachable and helpful particularly if there is a need for explanation of difficult issues. As a result whenever the Court is seeking to appoint a single joint expert for parties in litigation I have absolutely no hesitation in recommending Richard's forensic service. Equally I would be happy to recommend him to other solicitors, barristers, claims managers or the like who are seeking a forensic accountant as an expert witness.

I have instructed Richard Formby regularly over the last few years. His extensive experience means that he has usually encountered a similar scenario in the past, and therefore immediately knows the right questions to ask. Clients find him approachable, and he works closely with them to fully understand the nature and working of their business. Unlike most of the larger forensic accounting departments, the fact that he actually does the "donkey work" himself, rather than simply putting his signature to a report prepared by a junior colleague, means that he has a better insight into the given scenario, and is therefore better able to deal with cross examination.

He always seems happy to "go that extra mile", and is usually able to comply with the totally unrealistic deadlines that I set him. Clients are also often surprised to meet an accountant with a sense of humour!

Richard Formby habitually provides those instructing me with outstanding analysis and results in disparate aspects of forensic accountancy. His involvement is extremely practical, energetic, and friendly. He is prepared to get his hands dirty to obtain a thorough understanding of the client's situation. Finally, he is not afraid to give an opinion, and detailed reasons for his views, which makes his reports very valuable both in negotiating settlements and contesting claims as well.
